Faye Johnson, a retired professional with 42 years of church experience, has served in various capacities, including discipleship training and HR responsibilities. Currently, she is a member of the Servant Council and the teaching team at Cucamonga Christian Fellowship, focusing on prayer and inner healing. Over the past year, Faye has also held the position of vice co-chair of the Servant Council.

Faye completed her master's degree through Wagner University in the last three years, and she now offers counseling and life coaching services to her community. Her experience extends beyond the church, as she previously worked as a Director in dispatch resources, overseeing Southern California, Oregon, Washington, and Arizona. In this role, she maintained quality customer service skills and provided training and coaching to both management and hourly employees.

Leveraging her extensive experience in various church roles and her professional background, Faye is well-equipped to offer valuable insights and support to her church community. As a seasoned leader with a passion for service, Faye remains dedicated to using her skills and resources to create positive change and foster spiritual growth.
